... ABOUT CARROT RIVER: (1962)

THE TOWN OF CARROT RIVER, nestled snugly in the rich agricultural "Carrot River Valley" serves the north-eastern part of Saskatchewan's populated area. Located adjacent to wooded forests and the Pasquia Hills, recreation in the form of hunting and fishing is provided in close proximity by car or charter aircraft service, available to nearby points which abound with big game, waterfowl and fish.

A TRIP BY CAR thirty miles to the north-east takes one to Saskatchewan's first hydro-electric development at Squaw Rapids, which is located on the Saskatchewan River at the east end of Tobin Lake. This lake will be developed to provide swimming, boating, fishing, and other recreational activities.

THE PASQUIA REGIONAL PARK located 6 miles south of town provides space for recreation, picnicing, tenting for the individual or groups, and a nine-hole golf course. Improvements are being made progressively.

SASKATCHEWAN TIMBER BOARD modern planing mill handles between 7 and 8 million board feet of native spruce lumber each year.

IN ADDITION TO CEREAL CROPS the area is noted for its climate suitable to the growing of forage and seed crops. 151,000 cultivated acres produce an average of one and one-quarter million bushels of grain and seeds each year. Carrot River is the second largest grain shipping point in Saskatchewan.

LIVESTOCK THRIVE on the rich grasslands that dot this parkland terrain, producing in 1962 approximately 2500 head of cattle and 13000 hogs.

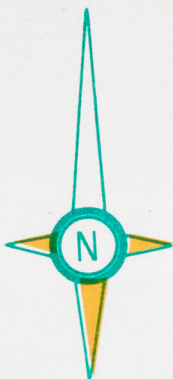

WITH A POPULATION OF 1000, the town is completely modern, serving as a trading centre for an additional 5000 rural residents. Facilities include natural gas, sewer and water, and automatic telephone service to be installed in 1963. With an assessment of $1,151,300, a street and sidewalk improvement program is being planned.
